Great Art.

Of course art gift and amiability of disposition are two different things; a good man is not necessarily a painter, nor does an eye for color necessarily imply an honest mind. But great art implies the union of both powers.—Ruskin.

FOUR DIPHTHERIA CASES IN ONE HOUSE

Quarantine because of diphtheria was placed on the house at 289 1-2 Franklin street Thursday morning after the death of a 3 year old child in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dpolt, but when other cases developed among children in the house Dr. E. J. Brophy, city health officer, ordered the children removed to the isolation ward at the Backus hospital. This was done late Thursday afternoon, as the health officer deemed it necessary to take this measure to prevent spread of the disease owing to the difficulty in making the families concerned obey quarantine regulations.

Four children in two families were found sick with diphtheria when the Backus hospital ambulance arrived at the house late Thursday afternoon with Inspector Henry Gebraht of the health department and day ambulance forces backed up by a police officer to assist in case the frightened households should offer resistance to having their children taken to the hospital.

What Inspector Gebraht put the house under quarantine Thursday morning two cases of diphtheria had developed over night, and by the time the ambulance arrived Thursday afternoon there were four cases. The children taken to the hospital were Julia and John Lombarello, 18, Paul Lombarello, 7, children of Mrs. Carmella Lombarello, and Eugene Dpolt, 8, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Dpolt, whose 3 year old daughter Mary died Wednesday night.

EXAMINATION ORDERED FOR SOME NATL. GUARD OFFICERS

An announcement of far-reaching importance in National Guard circles and to the effect that all National Guard officers, who by virtue of their rank in the national army during the World War were reappointed in the National Guard with a similar or lower rank without the formality of a mental examination, must, under a recent ruling of the controller general of the United States, appear before an examining board of three superior officers in order to receive federal recognition, is contained in a bulletin issued Thursday from the adjutant general's office.

In this is set out the act of the act of 1917 by which all National Guard officers entered the federal service were automatically discharged from the National Guard. It is upon the reappointment of such of these officers to a rank not requiring a mental examination on account of their army rank that the present situation is based.

Adjutant General George M. Cole said yesterday that the ruling of the controller general came as a surprise to many National Guard officers since it was generally accepted that the army rank of an officer precluded the necessity of a mental examination upon his reappointment. The edict has been taken in good part by the local officers involved, most of whom have expressed a willingness to appear before an examining board.

The controller general's decision is based on the last paragraph of section 75 of the national defense act of 1920 which sets forth that all officers who were federally recognized (examination waived) are required to appear before an examination board. Federal recognition of a National Guard officer legalizes the payment to him of army-drill pay and other forms of other pay.

General orders issued Wednesday from the adjutant general's office call attention to the contents of the bulletin and caution officers to carefully scrutinize the national guard federal recognition set them from that office with a view to making application to appear before an examining board in case their recognition is other than by examination.

All units of the Connecticut National Guard are authorized to parade under arms on November 11, Armistice day.

COLD WEATHER MAY STOP HIGHWAY CEMENT WORK

Weather conditions are beginning to make it hard for the men laying the new concrete road near Williams crossing on the Norwich-Victoria highway. By Thursday the concrete had been laid from the railroad crossing at Williams crossing to a point some 200 yards beyond the top of the hill, and men ahead have broken the ground for a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile.

It seems unlikely that the stretch of road can be cemented before frost sets in, and traffic will have to put up with bad traveling on one side of the stretch until spring arrives and the work can be completed. Although it will be inconvenient for many, the bad weather has broken the ground for the stretch and this stretch is finished and where in past winters there has been a three-mile stretch of ruts hub deep there will be a cement road open to travel the year round.
